WHO IS IT?

Tell your students: It's believed that nowadays people rely on their sense of sight, on their eyes, too much. Let's see if someone in the class can identify their classmates simply by touching their hands while blindfolded. Would anyone like to volunteer to guess whose hands they're touching without being able to see? More volunteers can participate at the same time.

You'll need a dark scarf or a piece of cloth for this game. Once the volunteers are ready, blindfolded, have the rest of the class decide who will participate. Anyone who wishes to join can do so, but it's important to remember that participation should always be voluntary, as this activity may be uncomfortable for some people.